WARD'S
Patent Grapple.
THIS GRAPPLE WAS INVENTED BY
Moses N. Ward,
OF BANGOR,
And was patented December 8th, 1868.
IN STRENGTH, SIMPLICITY, and FACILITY OF USE, it is far superior to any thing of the kind ever invented.
It is wonderful in its adaptation to every kind of object to which it is sought to be applied, taking a certain hold of logs, barrels, boxes and bales, with equal readiness.
No Mill, no Vessel, no Store nor Store House, should be without it.
It is indispensable to every ship builder, and every wharf builder. In fine, this Grapple is invaluable wherever there are heavy objects to be grappled, hoisted and moved.
All parties interested in the use of the Grapple, are invited to call and examine the instruments at the store of the manufacturers.

Season of 1869.

BLACK SULTAN (by Gen. Knox, dam a fast trotting Morgan Messenger Mare), will be found at the stable of the subscriber, in Plymouth, Maine. Terms to warrant, $25.
SULTAN is eight years old this Spring, color black, stands 16 hands 2½ inches high, weighs 1,160 lbs., and is a horse of remarkable symmetry and immense power. Is perfectly kind in, as well as out, of harness. His speed has never been fully developed, having been trained only one week. He trotted the 23d October last on Bangor track a full mile in 2.49½, making the last quarter in 37 seconds. He was driven at that time but once round the track which was wet, and considered by good judges to be 5 seconds slow. His colts are of good size and very promising—$200 having been offered and refused for a 3 year old of his get—$1700 for another.
I purchased this Stallion for the improvement of stock in this vicinity, and am induced to make a reduction in price for his services this season, to accommodate those who do not wish to pay such high prices.
Good pasturing furnished. Care will be taken to prevent escape or accident, but should they occur, they will be at the owners' risk.

WM. P. WINGATE, Chairman.

Bangor, June 15, 1869.

A Fanatic Unmasked.

We have all respect for a true philanthropist, whose heart is always open to sympathy for the oppressed and unfortunate, and whose hand is ever ready to do benevolent works. It matters little how extravagant an individual whose whole soul is devoted to a good work may be in its favor; he may be the most intense and unreasonable of radicals. We must still honor him for the truth of his convictions to himself, for the duty he steadfastly performs in his own view. But for the noisy professional agitator whose ambition it is to raise the wind on all occasions, who is willing to sacrifice humanity and brotherly love to sustain his own putative character of philanthropist, we have little charity.

Mr. Wendell Phillips, it seems to us has outdone even himself of late. Really a very able man, Mr. Phillips is unfortunate in not confining himself to the legitimate fields of professional renown. In his own view he appears as nothing unless he is continually wool pulling after the safe manner of other, impracticable theorists who never undertake to put the plainest ideas into practice. Slavery is dead, woman's rights flourish as well under the guidance of other minds, and there appears to be a healthy state of society and politics generally. But this is eminently unsatisfactory to the polished intellect of Mr. Phillips.— If people won't excite themselves very much upon all occasions, he will excite them, in order to keep Mr. Phillips at the top of the heap. "If people won't die natural deaths, they must be killed. Nothing but brickbats and blood (for other people) can satisfy this magnanimous, generous heart.

Peace being the order just at this time, Mr. Phillips spreads his fraternal wings over the dusky inhabitants in paint and feathers, who make the Western Plains rather dangerous for personal property about this time, and he tells them to fight. In itself, the work of protecting the Indians from unjust robbery and swindling by rapacious agents is worthy of all praise, but Mr. Phillips turns the tables completely round, and wants the red men to exterminate the whites, if we understand him. Mr. Phillips is a peace man, we believe, and yet he is publishing letters in favor of the savages lying in ambush along the Pacific Railroad, tearing up track, capturing and shooting conductors and passengers. He advises them to riddle the trains with bullets till the road is abandoned. "Every blow," this benevolent man tells the Indians, "struck at the Pacific rail-road is heard round the globe. Haunt that road with such dangers that none will dare to use it."

Is any further evidence necessary to prove the hollowness of this man's philanthropy? or that demagogueism may as well exist under the garb of neutrality as in politics?— With the promise of good order throughout the land, and the speedy return of confidence and safety to result from the internal policy of General Grant, this man fans the flame of savage warfare into new life, and would see the border butchery renewed.— Now that for the first time in many years our people have inaugurated a better feeling and the Government is attempting a more generous system towards the Indians, this incendiary steps in and tells them never to accept the truce, but to drench the Plains in the blood of innocent travelers, and to cleanse the country of civilization by the torch. None but a madman or a victim of disappointed hopes and overreaching ambition could persist in such wicked and malignant warfare upon every respectable usage and sentiment of the country.

In all the notices of Wendell Phillips, none seem to us to have sounded the depth of his deceptive character. He always has been an agitator; what has he ever accomplished? He has prided himself upon his sensational oratory; where has he ever acted according to his own teaching? He has urged the world to reform—to throw aside selfishness and to assume philanthropic habits; where has he illustrated the beauty of his teaching? Agitating the people to deeds of violence where violence seemed to him necessary, he has stood before them the cold, unpassioned orator, receiving the applause of the warm and excited multitude, with the emotion that could only characterize marble. He declared against the barbarism of slavery, but he would not cast a vote against it. He has stirred every reform movement with the polish of his speech, but any reform once accomplished is no longer satisfactory to him. He told the abolitionists to defend themselves whenever and wherever attacked by the Democratic party, but during the riots in Boston ten years ago, when his friends fought the mob for two days, Wendell Phillips retreated from Tremont Temple, before the sound of danger became imminent; the negroes were left to suffer from the fury which his eloquent invectives had incited. He urged the country to war, and then folded his arms in sullen indifference, never heartily applauding the efforts of the men who were to work out the free destiny of the Republic. When the war was over he had only cold words of congratulation, neutralized by malignant criticisms upon the men who had fought while he had complained and shrunk back from the contest. In short, everywhere has Wendell Phillips been foremost in fomenting commotion and strife, but never has he personally withstood the true demands of duty or of philanthropy when the crisis arrived.

This is the true unvarnished picture of this great agitator. A brilliant scholar, an indifferent and heartless thinker, a splendid orator, Wendell Phillips plays a strange part as philanthropist. His heart is not where his head directs; he too far to the emotional, and coldly contemplates the cruelty of his fellow man, counting notoriety above the true applause that comes from nature. He is a bird of evil omen, and his present bitterness best illustrates the falseness of his character. He is an ornament to the lecture room, and to the halls of practicable fanaticism he a . . . but the less the country listen to such brilliant deceptions, the earlier will it accomplish the object of all true reform.

Attend the Caucuses.

Our city ward caucusses are to be held tonight, at the usual places of meeting, for the selection of delegates to the Republican Convention on the 24th inst. The meetings should be full, as we have before urged, that the expression may be a fair representation of public sentiment in the State Convention.

Among the most important duties we perform is that of taking part in the primary meetings. Our first duty is there, for in a great measure they shape the ideas that shall guide us in future action. It is not enough that we are honest Republicans and temperance men and always do our duty to our party at the polls. It is not enough that we finally vote the ticket that appears to us the nearest to our own ideas. It is not enough that we always help swell the majority for the right in a general way. For in fact the greatest good can be accomplished by attending the primary meetings, and shaping the principles of the party in every particular and choosing the representatives who shall most faithfully carry out the Republican creed. At this time Bangor should be represented in the Convention by our best men, and the voice of the whole party should be heard. No one is subsequently proper by the one who declines to take part in the primary . . . man who has an opinion should give it at the caucusses, and we trust that the attendance will be general.

It is very evident that the administration of President Grant grows stronger, with age, in the popular estimation. Without any disposition to screen any officer from charges of error, the Republican party has stood firmly by the President, trusting to his honest intentions, the . . . purpose, and the general correctness of his judgment. Where errors were made, they were properly attributed to the President's inexperience to political strategy, and the result has proved the truth of that position, his own appointees have been freely removed where proved incompetent or unreliable. The sores of disappointed aspirants have nearly ceased, and complaint is now confined to insignificant, virulent Democratic newspapers. So, steadily the President has been gaining in the popular regard until, after less than four months of trial, it seems the work of unscrupulous detraction must very soon cease on all sides, and General Grant must be accepted, as he truly is, as the President of the whole people.

The New York Times remarks that there is a great deal of apprehension in Spain concerning General Prim, who it is found, will attempt to play the same game in Spain that the present Emperor Napoleon played in France seventeen years ago. In other words it is supposed he is plotting to bring about a favorable opportunity to seize the reins of power. By a . . . he has been watched with suspicion ever since the outbreak of the revolution, and if the Spaniards continue to watch him as closely hereafter ("eternal vigilance is the price of liberty,") there will be no possibility of his getting the chance to carry out the . . . attributed to him.

The Board of Managers of the Soldiers' National Cemetery at Gettysburg, through the Committee of Arrangements, respectfully invite all the soldiers who were in the battle of Gettysburg, and the . . . municipal and civic organizations of the country, and citizens generally to participate in the ceremonies of dedicating the monument on the 1st of July. Senator Morton delivers the oration.

A dispatch says the Indians are again at their murderous work in Kansas, 35 miles north of Solomon City and two men are reported killed. A party of men followed the Indians, but discovering a large force them did not attack. Gen. Bryney was leave for the scene of the outrage.

CUBA. Cholera has become an epidemic in Nuevitas and the surrounding country in Cuba. It is unusually malignant in its attacks, and in a majority of cases the result is fatal. The insurgents have burned the towns of Nigrus and Camarones. The Havana markets are dull, and merchants are indisposed to do business in the present unsettled state of affairs.

Information has been received in Washington, that the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States has been ratified by both houses of the Florida Legislature. The vote in the Assembly was 26 against 13, and in the Senate 13 against 8.

It was given out last week that Governor Curtin, of Pennsylvania, would, in his Philadelphia speech of Saturday, develop the new party policy of "War and Buncombe." He uttered not a word on the subject. Low ever, What little he said on the foreign relations of the country was in an entirely different direction. He said that he himself, while abroad would labor for the maintenance of peace, and then he added:

"It is a subject of congratulation that our country is restored to peace, and that the war is over; and I do sincerely hope that it will please Providence to answer the earnest prayer of our President to 'let us have peace.' When I return to you, I hope I may find this a nation of homogeneous people, with all the bitterness of angry feeling which caused the war and all its vicissitudes forgotten, and that we may be in the enjoyment of that fraternal feeling which alone can make a nation great and respected, and a people happy and prosperous."

It is evident that Governor Curtin has been misrepresented, as there is no doubt other prominent Republicans have been, in regard to his willingness to plunge the country into another war.

The Portland Press says, "the advantages that have followed from the hydrographic survey in this State have stimulated the desire of the people of other localities to make use of similar means of laying before the public their facilities for manufacturing enterprises. The New Hampshire Legislature has already taken the matter in hand, and a survey will undoubtedly be ordered."

The New York Evening Post mentions among the Catholic office-holders of that city seventeen of the most prominent, . . . all the civil justices, all but two of the police justices, all the police court clerks, three out of four coroners, two members of Congress, three out of five State Senators, eighteen out of twenty-one members of Assembly, . . . of the Common Council, and eight . . . of the Supervisors.

Gen. O. O. Howard, in a . . . at Washington on the battle of Williamsburg and Fair Oaks, defended the conduct of Casey's troops at Seven Pines, and said that they did all that any troops could be expected to do under the circumstances. The censure of Casey's division by McClellan was therefore . . . Gen. Howard in the same lecture recounted some of his personal experience in this battle, where, as is well known, he lost his arm. During the engagement an officer and another undertook to protect him from danger, in consequence of which the officer was killed. This was a . . . as noble as anywhere described in the romantic stories of the first Napoleon, and shows how thoroughly the American Havelock was . . . by his . . .

A SINGULAR CASE. Our obituary column yesterday contained a notice of the death of Miss Sarah T. Lovell, at the age of 67 year. Her case is one for which a parallel can hardly be found in the whole country, for long and lingering sickness. For forty years she has been out of health and for thirty-two bed ridden. A friend informs us that thirty-six years ago he called to see her, and she was confined to her bed to all appearances in the last stages of consumption, and apparently with but a few weeks, at most, to live. Yet she has been lingering on, and what is most remarkable, has been afflicted with almost every disease, contagious or epidemic, with which our city has been afflicted. During the prevalence of the cholera, she was one of its subjects, but while others, hearty and robust were cut down, she, upon as it were the very brink of the grave, lived. She has been the subject of the watchful care and unremitting attention of her two sisters and her brother, the late John W. Lovell, all of whom have died before her, and since their death the widow of Mr. Lovell has with true sisterly kindness filled the place made vacant by the deaths of the ones dearer kin.

Death must have been a welcome relief from the long and tedious years of pain and suffering which the invalid has endured.

POLICE COURT: Wednesday, June 16. Wm. McCafferty was brought in for committing an assault, and appealed from the sentence of the Court to pay a fine of $10 and costs.

—During the present week a quantity of Black Bass will be placed in Chimo Pond, in Eddington, by Col. A. B. Farnham, under the direction of C. G. Atkins, Esq. State Commissioner of Fisheries. This is the first step on the part of the Commissioners in stocking the waters of our State with fish. The Black Bass is to be introduced into pickerel ponds, partly on account of its excellence, and partly because it is the only fish known able to compete with the voracious pickerel. We understand that other ponds in this vicinity are to be stocked.

WATER. The citizens of Brewer are much interested in the introduction of water from Hat Case Pond. Many of the people have subscribed liberally and others are ready to do so. It will be of as much value to that town as for Bangor [illegible] tion to the number of inhabitants. If the number of engines in this city should be reduced in consequence of the supply it would become a necessity to our neighbors in case of fire. It will not be at all strange if the town of Brewer gets ahead of our city government in voting for the water, and they will certainly have the advantage of tapping the pipe and getting a supply in advance of our own citizens.

—By notice in another column it will be seen that steamer Wm. Tibbetts will leave Bangor at 5 o'clock A. M. hereafter. She is doing a large business, we understand, and is adequately competent for the freighting demanded.

—The Augusta Journal says: "The Universalist State Convention will meet next week with the Winthrop street society in this city. The committee of arrangements will provide good accommodations for all who may come, and we have no doubt large numbers will be in attendance. If some of the good brothers find themselves in 'evangelical' families, they must try and feel at home. The beef steak and coffee will taste just as well. The meetings promise to be unusually interesting. Augusta has got on its summer attire and is now in its full glory, and our Universalist brethren will be charmed with the outward world, while at the same time they turn their attention to the inward and spiritual."

—The Republicans of Paris and Turner have sent delegates to our Convention committed to vote for Sidney Perham. Norway and Gorham declare for Chamberlain. The contests in many places seems to be very animated.

Baptist State Convention.

OLDTOWN, June 15.

The Maine Baptist Missionary Convention met in the Baptist Church here at ten o'clock, the President, Rev. W H Shailer D. D. of Portland, presiding. Devotional exercises, the appointment of committees and other business occupied the forenoon.

AFTERNOON.

Rev. A. K. P. Small from the Committee on Obituaries, made a report giving brief accounts of the life services of Rev. Hervey Hawes, late of Monmouth, Rev. Nath'l Robinson, late of Bangor, Rev. Samuel Fogg, late of Monmouth, and Rev. W. J. Durgin, late of Isleboro. This was followed by appropriate remarks by Rev. Mr. Butler and Fathers Wilson and Blanchard.

The annual election of officers occurred, resulting as follows:

President—Rev. A. K. P. Small, of Portland.

Vice President—Dea. J. C. White, of Bangor.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. J. Ricker of Augusta.

Recording Secretary—Rev. S. L. B Chase of Bangor.

Treasurer—Prof. J. B. Foster, of Waterville.

A large Board of Trustees was also elected.

The annual sermon was then preached by Rev. A R Crane of Hallowell, the devotional exercises being conducted by Rev W H Clark of Mount Vernon. The sermon was from Luke 10:2. Theme—The duty of the church in view of the scarcity of laborers in the Lord's vineyard. 1. Duties expressed. Pray the Lord of the harvest to send laborers. Any other excellent qualifications as cannot take the place of Christ's call. It is not for the church to set apart whom he pleases, but whom the Lord calls. The Lord of the harvest has those whom he has sent. He has abundant gifts to bestow, and among these gifts are faithful laborers.

When the people realize their need they will pray and "gifts" will be sent. This was illustrated by the case of a church in New York which is the result of prayer of a part one of its own number, and this we have Wm. R. Williams.

2. Duties implied. Labor to develop the gifts of those who are in the church. When this is fully done the laborers will equal the number of Christians.

Make the church spiritual. Spiritual laborers come from a spiritual church. Illustrated by reference to the Scotch dissenters. We should look out those who have the requisite talent for pulpit work. Thus they can the brought forward Andrew Fuller in the work of the ministry.

Another important duty is to support the ministers we have. We cannot expect the Lord largely to increase our ministerial force if he knows they will not be able to live if they are sent them.

The lives of those in the ministry [illegible] an influence not to be overlooked. They must show strong faith and love for their works. It [illegible] reported that he had [illegible] men, he must expect having over [illegible] to the work—Paul was not of [illegible] character. Let us as Christians perform our duties and our want of laborers will be supplied.

Rev. Mr Plummer of the Methodist denomination, spoke representing their two Conferences in this State.

EVENING.

Rev. Mr. Chase, of Bangor, from the committee on Sunday schools, reported the following topics for remarks:—

1. Sunday School [illegible] direct means in the conversion of souls.

2. The error of allowing Sunday Schools to take the place of other means of grace.

3. The uses and abuses of question books and other helps in Sunday School instruction.

4. The propriety and conducting Sunday School concerts, the use of blackboard, &c.

Very interesting and stirring remarks were made upon these topics in their order by Rev. Brown of Cherryfield, Matthews of Auburn, Longridge of Mechanic Falls, Kelley, Dunlap, Mr. Ricker of Oldtown, Wheeler of Skowhegan, Holman of Rockland, Lawrence of Dexter, Herring of [illegible] and Dea J. C. White of Bangor.

The convention will continue in session tomorrow.

VOICE OF THE [illegible] BAPTISTS. The Quarterly session of the Bowdoin Quarterly F. B Meeting was held at Monmouth on Tuesday last. The attendance was unusually large, and the session one of interest and profit. The Quarterly Meeting represents forty one churches, with a membership of upwards of 3,000. During the session the following resolutions on the subject of Temperance were adopted.

Resolved, That we recognize intemperance as the most fruitful source of crime, pauperism, insanity, vice, moral and physical degradation, now existing; and we believe that this terrible flood of iniquity can only be stayed by closing up the grog shops.

Resolved, That a large portion of the intemperance, and its attendant evils, in this State during the present year, are justly chargeable upon the refusal of the State [illegible] to provide the means for the enforcement of the existing laws against the sale of intoxicating liquors.

Resolved, That we recognize it as our Christian duty to use our entire influence for the elevation to office of only such men as will use their official influence for the enforcement of all laws against the traffic in spirituous liquors or beverage.

—We learn from the Kennebec Journal that the work of deepening and widening the channel of the Kennebec between Augusta and Gardiner, which was begun during the summer of 1867, has been resumed by Mr. Wright, the contractor, who arrived from Portland last week, with one excavator. The excavator is now in operation at a point in the river about mid-way between Augusta and Hallowell. This is an important work, in the completion of which the public feel a deep interest.

—The Oracle says that the citizens of Wiscasset were considerably excited on the 21st by the discovery that Mr. Hegan, contractor for the new Custom House, was engaged in tearing away the remaining walls of the old Fort at the entrance of the harbor, to obtain brick for use on that building. Application being made to the Collector of Customs, the depredations were suspended, and the War Department has been notified of the facts in the case.

—We find in the Portland Press that officer Tarbox, of Biddeford, observed three boys in that city who were spending money freely. Finally one of them went into a jeweler's store and negotiated for a watch offering in payment a $500 bill. The owner of the store called officer Tarbox, and then called Mr. Chapman, cashier of one of the banks, who pronounced the bill to be genuine. The officer then questioned the lad as to where he got the bill. The reply not being satisfactory, the officer, after some further watching, finding the boys attempting to escape, arrested the three. The names of the lads are Chas. Damery, John Molloy and Jacob McMinneman, all belonging in Portland. They confessed that they had robbed the letter box of the First National Bank in the Postoffice in Portland, between 6 and 7 o'clock Sunday evening, by opening or breaking open a window in the office, just over the box of the Bank, and had taken out the contents of the box. They told where they had opened the letters; and on the vacant lot between the Printers' Exchange and the Savings Bank block were found the remnants of bills of exchange, drafts, letters, &c., which they had torn up.

—The New Gloucester correspondent of the Lewiston Journal says that Mr. Silas Tripp, who lived on the eighty rod strip, in that town, was found dead in his barn on Thursday, 31 inst., having apparently committed suicide by hanging. Further developments give rise to a suspicion that he was murdered and left in that position that the murderers might escape punishment. And yet no one has been arrested.

—The Oracle says that Mr. Edwin Robinson was severely injured on the afternoon of the 5th, while repairing a barn belonging to [illegible] White, in the north part of Wiscasset. A plank fell upon him from the staging, and cut a frightful gash in the side of his head; fortunately no bones were broken.

—We find in the Times that one Eunice Preble of Bath entered the primary school house on North street, and made an assault upon the teacher, Miss Mary Higgins, of that city, on the 21 inst., and disturbed the school. The superintending school committee, made a complaint against the said and people Eunice. She was adjudged guilty and fined $20 and costs. Judge Tallman in passing sentence remarked that this was the first one that had come before him of the kind, and that he should fine to the extent of the statute, thereby showing to all such offenders what they might expect from him.

—Saturday morning, on a wager of $50, James Coney, an employee on the Rolling Mills at Lagoon, Cape Elizabeth, walked fifty miles inside of the time, 11 hours, 23 minutes, by 17 minutes.

—The Lewiston Journal says that on Sunday morning a young man from Bangor got into some trouble in that city, and went in on his muscle. Quite a muss was raised, and there were several bloody noses and black eyes.

—They don't enforce the liquor law against "ladies" in Lewiston, we infer from the fact that a couple of them were found parading the streets in a drunken condition the other day.

—It is declared that Perkins, the manager of the Riverside Park, has decamped without paying over the purses due. The owner of the Portland horse "Arcola" is out $ [illegible]

—Two hundred and [illegible] soldiers arrived in Augusta yesterday afternoon from Albany, N. Y., enroute for the Military Asylum at Togus.

MAINE MEDICAL ASSOCIATION. The 17th annual meeting of the Association began [illegible] in Portland Tuesday. The convention was called to order by the President, Dr. Dana of Portland. Drs. Gordon of Portland, Tewksbury of Falmouth and Lowell of Cape Elizabeth were appointed a committee on credentials and the [illegible] new members. Dr. J. M. Bates of Yarmouth, H. M. Harlow of Augusta, T. H. Brown of Paris, N. Shannon of Cape Elizabeth, and T. A. Foster, of Portland, were appointed a committee to nominate a list of officers of the society for the next year. The Association [illegible] members. The committee on publication reported that the [illegible] of the Association for the year 1866, '67 and '68 [illegible] collected and [illegible] volume of 221 pages [illegible] The report [illegible] In the afternoon the President [illegible] an interesting address. Dr. [illegible] presented the report of the Committee upon the Anatomical bill. He [illegible] offering resolutions complimentary to the gentlemen who [illegible] the members of the Anatomical Committee. The resolutions reflected quite severely upon the narrow minded partisans who endeavored to kill the bill offered to the Legislature. Dr. Brickett of Augusta, and Dr. Sweazy of [illegible] and others, spoke upon the desirability of securing the passage of the bill.

The following gentlemen were elected officers for the ensuing year:—President, D. McRuer, Bangor; Vice Presidents, J. M. Bates, of Yarmouth, and T. H. Jewett, of South Berwick; Corresponding Secretary, A. C. Hamlin, Bangor; Recording Secretary, C. O. Hunt, Portland; Treasurer, T. A. Foster, Portland.

In the evening was discussed the bill for "Registration of Physicians and the Prevention of Quackery," which failed of a passage by the Legislature last winter.

City of Bangor.

Baby Power

Six little feet to cover!
Six little hands to fill,
Tumbling out in the clover,
Tumbling over the hill;
Six little stockings rip[ping],
Six little shoes [illegible],
Spite of the pro[illegible] whi[illegible],
Shirts, shirts, and aprons torn!

Bugs and bumble-bees catching,
Needles of briers and stings,
Walls and furniture scratching,
Twisting off button and things;
Into sugar and flour,
Into the salt and meal,
Their royal, baby power,
All through the house we feel.

Behind the big stove creeping,
To steal the kindling wood!
Into the cupboard peeping,
"To hunt for somein dood"
The dogs they tease to snarling,
The chickens know no rest,
Yet the old cook calls them darling,
And loves each one the best.

Smearing each others' faces,
With soot or blacking-brush,
To forbidden things and places,
Always making a rush;
Over a chair, or table,
They'll fight, and kiss again
When told of slaughtered Abel,
Or cruel, wicked Cain.

All sorts of mischief trying,
On rainy days—in doors—
And then perversely crying
To rush out when it pours
A raid on grandma making—
(In spite of her nice new cap,)
Its strings for bridles taking,
While riding on her lap.

Three rose-bud mouths beguiling,
Prattling the livelong day,
Six sweet eyes on me smiling,
Hazel, and blue, and gray;
Hazel—with heart-light sparkling,
"Too happy we trust to hide—
Blue—with long lashes darkling,
Like violets in the shade.

Gray—full of earnest meaning,
A dawning light so fair,
Of woman's life beginning,
We dread the noon-tide glare
Of earthly strife, and passion,
May sp[illegible] tender glow,
Change its celestial fashion,
As earth stains change the snow!

Three little heads, all sunny,
To pillow and bless at night,
Riotous A[illegible] and Dunnie,
Jodnie, so bonnie and bright,
Three souls immortal slumber,
Crowned by that golden hair;
When Christ his flock shall number,
Will all my lambs be there?

Now with the stillness round me,
I bow my head and pray!
Since this faint heart has found thee,
Suffer them not to stray,
Up to the shining portals,
Over life's stormy tide,
Treasures I bring—immortal,
Saviour, by thou my guide.

CUT GRASS EARLY. There has been considerable discussion on this subject, but not much improvement has been made in cutting grass early. Some say, 'we shall begin haying earlier next season.' The time soon comes round and finds them in a hurry about other work; the hoeing must be done and the few days in which they might take advantage of the haying has passed away, and now they must hurry and drive both early and late, while they are losing much in the quality of the hay. There are many tons of hay put into the barn the latter part of August that are not worth more than half price. A farmer had better pay three dollars per day to get the hay crop secured before the seeds are hardened, than to pay one dollar per day after the seed is ripe. I have known intelligent farmers to put off hiring help till the latter part of haying, because they could hire fifty cents cheaper per day than at the beginning of haying. Such men are penny wise and pound foolish. If June grass will make nice yellow butter, why will not June cut grass made into hay make nice winter butter? Then how pleasant to have such nice hay to feed out in the spring!

My stock has always done well on early made hay without grain, than late cut hay with grain.

Perhaps some would like to know what is late and early cutting. Last season if my haying could have been finished the 18th of July, it would have been secured in good order. I did not finish till the 15th of August and found the hay very poor and the cattle know it. It will spend well, but the cattle do not lay on much fat, neither does it increase the flow of milk. Some of my neighbors did not finish till the first of September, and this was June grass. The seed had nearly all fallen out, so that it was not worth cutting. If this grass is cut early or when in blossom, it will make excellent fodder, but cut as late as some cut it, you will find it worth no more than rye straw.

How can the hay crop be secured in better season? We must employ more help or use labor-saving machines. The mowing machine, the horse rake, and the hay tedder are great helps; but if the farmer does not begin soon enough with these the grass may get too ripe.

It would be very pleasant to be all done haying by the [illegible] of July, then you would have plenty of time to secure your grain crops in time, and the rest of the season before fall work you could be plowing, picking rocks, cutting bushes, dragging muck, &c.

Farmers, think of these things, and try to make a little improvement each year, and in a few years you will make decided progress.—[Cor. Germantown Telegraph.

RAISE THE BEST CALVES. We find the following article in the Germantown Telegraph:

I do not not propose to have all the calves raised; but with the present high prices of good cows, it seems injudicious to let good heifer calves go to the butcher. I know a twenty-dollar bill is a temptation to let a good calf go. I could get that price for one now on hand at eight weeks old. I shall not sell her. She drinks well and eats very like an ox. I bought her at four weeks old, let her go without one meal to give her an appetite, then carried her some new milk in a clean pail, wet my finger in the milk, put it in her mouth and gradually coaxed her head down to the milk. She soon learned where the milk came from, and in a few days would drink as well as I could wish. She now has what sweet skimmed milk she will drink twice a day. It is warmed nearly to blood-heat. Cold milk is sure to give the scours to a young calf. I intend to feed her milk several months and keep her constantly growing and healthy. I give her a lock of hay when I feed the other cattle, and give some exercise in the yard with the dry cows.

I have raised all best heifer calves for the last five years, and am getting a good stock of well-behaved cows, much more quiet and orderly than those I formerly picked up in the neighborhood.

I find my heifers are as large at two years as most of those I see are at three. I have them come in about two years. But to have heifers that you will be proud to show your friends, you must not let them get any check in their growth. It will not do to let them out to pasture to shift for themselves in the hot sun of summer or the cold storms of autumn. They ought to have milk till six months old, and a little meal may be added gradually. They ought to learn to eat meal while young say before they are a year old, but I do not believe in raising calves on a grain or porridge diet. Milk is their natural food, and I believe they should be raised chiefly on butter farms.

A cow that is poor for butter-making, but good for the cheese dairy, it is well-known, has fat calves. The casein of milk is the part that gives the most nourishment to man or beast.

I know there is an idea quite common among some farmers and others that skimmed milk will not fat a calf; and many experiments seem to favor the idea. But I think the failures have been owing to feeding it carelessly; either sour, too cold or too hot.

I know my calves are in demand for veal, and are pronounced extra when fed on clean skimmed milk.

We should not forget to give calves a clean dry bed; and they should be treated kindly at all times. Then quiet, orderly cows will be the result.

DISCIPLINE OF OXEN AND STEERS. The matter having been called to the attention of the Executive Officers of the New England Agricultural Society, that in the list of premiums as originally published, no prizes were offered for the discipline of oxen and steers, they have had the matter under consideration and have decided to offer the following premiums, being the same as were awarded by the State Society at its exhibition last fall, and to be governed by the same regulations, viz:

'For best exhibition of discipline by one yoke of oxen, over seven feet in girth, $10; second, $7; third, $4. For best exhibition as above, by oxen girthing seven feet and under, $10; second, $7; third, $4. Best exhibition of training of steers, (not over three years old) both in and out of yoke, by a boy not over sixteen years of age, $5; second, $4; third, $3.

The committee will see the cattle tested at the drag, reasonably loaded, and in [illegible] with the cart. They will require them to be shown by moving them forward and backward, turning them to the right and to the left without a load. In putting them to the cart, they shall be brought first on the left, then on the right. The cart will be moved forward and backward and also by attaching the oxen with [illegible] to the cart, to propel it backward. Any driver exercising cruelty or using [illegible] while driving, shall be immediately ruled off the ground by the committee.

WHAT RAILROADS DO FOR REAL ESTATE. A computation, made with great care by General John S. Shultz, of Manchester, N. J., and presented by him during the winter to the Legislature of that State as an evidence of the influence of railroads on the development of the country, shows that the value of improved and unimproved lands on the line of the Raritan and Delaware Bay road, between Manchester and Long Branch, a distance of twenty-five miles, during the [illegible] immediately succeeding the completion of said road, $10,1[illegible], on $6,[illegible], or an aggregate increase of one hundred and [illegible] nine per cent, or twenty-nine per cent per annum.

The progress indicated may appear most incredible to persons unfamiliar with the past and present status of the localities alluded to, but we [illegible] understated than otherwise. One would think that with such evidence before them the members of the Legislature would refuse to grant charters for the various new lines petitioned for at each recurring session. That they do refuse [illegible] opinion of rough-spoken men, proof [illegible] the Camden and Amboy in [illegible] greater influence than [illegible] the public welfare. There are [illegible] of thousands of acres of land in [illegible] Jersey lying idle and unimproved [illegible] for lack of [illegible].—[Hearth and Home.

CARE OF DAIRY COWS. Dairy [illegible] only profitable [illegible] during the summer and autumn, [illegible] many farmers actually have no [illegible] milk in the winter to supply [illegible] with fresh butter, while others [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] water and refuse from the kitchen [illegible] them [illegible] which [illegible] butter, which [illegible] stuff they feed the cows with, is only [illegible] pigs to eat. Dairy cows will pay [illegible] pacity of any man [illegible] furnish [illegible] say, results [illegible] any one cannot make a lot of [illegible] well, neither could he make [illegible] sheep out wool enough and make [illegible] cient mutton to answer the [illegible] keeping. Penurious men must [illegible] their dispositions in the dairy [illegible] for the [illegible] of dairy produce [illegible] remunerative, [illegible] meat, so that there is double [illegible] ment to [illegible] well. [illegible] must be [illegible] spoil other [illegible] kind of [illegible] where winter dairymen [illegible] and carrots [illegible] with hay and meal, and [illegible] dairy [illegible].—[Country Gentleman.

Little Green [illegible] early, twilight, burning five, ten or fifteen minutes, will attract or [illegible] swarms of insects, and more directly [illegible] fruit than anything else. [illegible] tained and [illegible] for the whole season, [illegible] lamps, like [illegible] will be money at one hundred per cent [illegible] every man's pocket [illegible] den or orchard. And [illegible] burning or [illegible] make two [illegible] seeds [illegible].

Agricultural Items.

It is an excellent plan to keep a lump [illegible] common chalk in the feeding trough [illegible] stantly, after the calves are a month old; this will correct the acidity of the stomach and have a tendency to keep them in a healthy state.

There was shipped from Vergennes, Vt., Monday, May 24th, eleven thousand [illegible] hundred and sixty-four pounds of butter, gross in three hundred and twenty-[illegible] packages. Average price thirty-six cents.

One day this spring, Willie [illegible] Irasburgh, Vt., [illegible] rowed with [illegible] of ground, and after putting up his team went one mile through [illegible] and [illegible] feet after the cows, drove them home and milked nine of them. A pretty good day's work for a boy.

A boy eleven years old, named [illegible] and [illegible], fell a victim to the [illegible] epidemic a few days ago in Rock Island, Illinois. [illegible] liberate, he having gone [illegible] and fastening [illegible] piece of [illegible]. He then secured the [illegible] on the ceiling by means of a [illegible] had placed [illegible] 'Adams' apple' and [illegible] The latter did not [illegible] was only [illegible] good spirits [illegible] cause for the deed. The Davenport Journal says:

Against the [illegible] facts of his [illegible] of hanging, a matter [illegible] minds have been [illegible] the scaly and deadly [illegible] biographer of Johnson [illegible] English divine [illegible] would go a [illegible] cution and [illegible] rope which [illegible] some great [illegible]. It is horrifying to think that a boy of this age should take refuge in self-destruction [illegible] might be [illegible] assigned for it [illegible] dangerous experiment [illegible] sake.

The Home Journal, which claims to be the organ of fashionable society in New York, describing with great minuteness the ladies of the metropolis and their costumes, reporting weddings and other matters [illegible] a new feature in the [illegible] of engagements. But this is a day of progress as is shown by the following item from the last number:

The engagement that existed for a short time between Mr. J. Grau, of the French Theatre, and Miss Levy, daughter of Arthur L. Levy, Esq., has recently been annulled.

The wag who gave an account of the respective ages of New York editors tells us something of their personal appearance: Mr. Bennett is the tallest editor, Mr. Dana the fattest, Mr. Greeley the roundest, Mr. Nordhoff the [illegible], Mr. Raymond the neatest, Mr. [illegible] Brooks [illegible] solemnest, Mr. Tilton the [illegible], Mr. DeNyse the shortest, Mr. Van Buren the reddest, Mr. Roosevelt the politest, Mr. Oakey Hall the wittiest, Mr. Winter the touseliest, Mrs. Stanton the prettiest, Miss Anthony the prettiest, Eleanor Kirke the prettiest, Nellie Hutchinson the prettiest.

The patrons of First Class Amusements are earnestly requested to investigate the character of STONE & MURRAY'S CIRCUS, and by so doing they will discover the wide distinction that really exists between it and many of the so-called Circus Exhibitions whose performances are all on paper, and whose owners make promises, knowing they have not the resources to fulfill them.

STONE & MURRAY advertise only such attractions as are actually in their possession, and this is truly one of the secrets of their unparalleled prosperity.

They Win Success by Deserving it!

The Grand Entree Procession will parade the principal avenues on the morning of the Exhibition Day.

The ATTRACTIONS OF THIS CIRCUS are inside of the Pavilion, and are not exhausted in a "mock auction" street show. STONE & MURRAY have what their patrons pay to see,—a FIRST CLASS ENTERTAINMENT, with a profusion of New Ideas and Novel Effects.

Do not heed the plaintive cry of "Wait, oh, Wait!" uttered by "managerial distress." But if you desire to see the very best Circus in the world, attend the superb exhibitions of Stone & Murray.

If you "wait," to see a better Circus than STONE & MURRAY'S, you will be disappointed.

If you "wait," expecting to see a Circus equal to STONE & MURRAY'S, you are respectfully informed that such an Institution does not exist.
